Dear Sirs: I object to drug testing on the job which forces people who have shy bladder syndrome to give a urine sample in front of another person. There are plenty of ways to do testing which do not involve this method. We who have paruresis suffer from a real medical condition which makes it difficult or even impossible to urinate while another person is watching us. We are honest, tax-paying citizens who want the same right to work as our fellow citizens who are able to urinate for the drug testing. Please change this policy now.

Thank you,
